Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

1. Claim 8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is unclear whether applicant is intending to claim the apparatus or the product within the apparatus. Both the apparatus and product worked upon are two separate statutory classes of invention. Furthermore materials processed within an apparatus bear no weight to structural features of the apparatus since it is viewed as a recitation of intended use.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
  2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
  3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
  4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
2. Claims 1-9 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Luca (US Patent No. 2,533,721) in view of Kawanishi (US Patent No. 5,989,175) in further view of Patois (US Patent No. 5,853,080).

Luca 721 teaches a conveying apparatus where concrete mixture is extruded from an extruder onto a conveyor belt equipped with a rotary roller and belt and chopped into segments by a cutter (See Figures 1-3).

However Luca 721 fails to teach a low resilient padding coupled with the conveyor belt system.

In an apparatus for conveying materials Kawanishi 175 teaches the use of a conveyor belt with a series of protrusions (reads on pads) attached to the belt (Col 3 Lines 1-13). The protruded element offer a gripping element to the material as it is being cut to avoid any slippage as the material is cut through.

It would be obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the apparatus of Luca 721 with the teachings of Kawanishi 175 in order to prevent material loss and damage as it is processed through the conveyor system.

The hypothetical device of Luca 721 and Kawanishi 175 lack the teaching of using a low resilient material for the making of the protruded segments.

In another apparatus for conveying materials Patois 080 teaches the use urethane for conveyor belting material. The advantage being that urethane belt would offer low coefficient of friction when conveying the products (Col 8 Lines 21-26).

It would be obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the hypothetical device of Luca 721 and Kawanishi 175 to incorporate the teachings of Patois 080, ensuring optimal production conditions for material processed and transported through the conveyance apparatus.
